LEARNING GROUP
GROWING EXCEPTIONAL LEADERS

Daniel Owen

Daniel is an experienced senior workplace/executive coach and facilitator, focussed on building leadership capability and enabling people to achieve success in the workplace. He also facilitates Executive Learning Groups as part of the Jeff Whalan Learning Group.

Daniel has a strong record of achievement in senior leadership roles, driving reforms and delivering improvements in education and training, asset sales and corporatisation, employment, Indigenous policy and programmes, youth affairs, regional economic policy and transport. Having worked at a senior leadership level in a large, devolved regional network he has a particularly strong understanding of the challenges of regional roles. Throughout his career Daniel focussed on building highly effective teams through teaching, mentoring and coaching.

Drawing on nearly twenty years' experience as a senior executive in the Commonwealth Public Service, Daniel has a deep understanding of workplace culture, settings and context. He has always been a strong believer that the best results can be achieved through a positive focus on empowering people and has coached senior executives and teams across the public, private and community sectors. He has also helped people to deal with complex staff management issues and to resolve team conflict.

For Daniel, coaching is a collaboration which focusses on assisting people to identify and fulfil their potential at work.

Daniel has designed and facilitated strategic planning workshops, learning circles, business planning sessions, team building workshops and stakeholder consultations. He has a positive, conversational style and a good track record of creating the opportunity for genuine dialogue.

Daniel was a member of an Executive Learning Group for many years and is a great advocate of the power of senior leaders being able to improve their individual performance and learn to resolve their problems in a supportive and discreet environment. Through Learning Groups, Daniel has observed members being effectively supported to improve individual and organisational performance, better connect across organisations, exchange ideas and benefit from peer learning.

Daniel is a Certified Organisational Coach with the Institute of Executive Coaching and Leadership and a member of the International Coach Federation. He holds a Graduate Diploma in Applied Economics and a Bachelor of Arts (Education and Communication).
